

Dr. Vani Parmar
Chief, Breast Surgical Oncology,
Punyashlok Ahilyadevi Holkar Head & Neck Cancer Institute of India,
Mazgaon

Dr. Vani Parmar is a distinguished figure in the field of Breast Oncosurgery in India. Presently, she holds the position of: Chief, Breast Surgical Oncology at Punyashlok Ahilyadevi Holkar Head & Neck Cancer Institute of India at Mazgaon, Mumbai.

With over 36 years experience as a surgeon of which a dedicated tenure of over 25 years as a Breast Cancer Surgeon at the Tata Memorial Centre, she has earned international acclaim for her leadership, clinical expertise, research contributions, and educational impact in the field of breast oncology. Her extensive experience underscores her proficiency as a highly-skilled breast surgical oncologist, specializing in Oncoplastic techniques and aesthetic breast-conserving surgery and Implant-based breast reconstructions.

She has over 115 publications in National and International peer-reviewed journals, numerous chapters in breast cancer textbooks, ongoing international collaborative research in artificial intelligence (AI) in breast cancer diagnostics and initiated and established the first 3D printing facility at the Advanced Centre for Treatment, Research, and Education in Cancer (ACTREC).
